terpretation of her character, although her performance highly creditable, and the applause with which it was re-ceived augurs well for the popularity of this revival of mark that if the play had been subjected to a little more pruning, so as to harmonize more completely with the conventional ideas of the present day, it would have been well. NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

The Norfolk Day Book, which was received by a flag of truce to-day, gives a ctrious account of the capture of the schooner Sherwood. Among other things it is stated that three or four bosts were disabled, and the Express set on fire. All the damage done by our shalls at Sewall's Point is said to have been the killing of a "rooster."

Six contrabands were taken from small canoes in the Chesapeake Bay, off Back river, this morning, in an almost exhausted condition. They were brought to headquarthe military authorities there are very much frightened at an expected attack. It is believed there that General Burnside's expedition is certainly destined to go up York river, and that General Wool will co-operate in the attack upon Yorkiown. General Magradar is said to have telegraphed the condition of affairs to Richmond, and asked permission to destroy Yorktown by fire, and to have received a reply directing him to refrain until he is certain that that place is to be immediately attacked. Strong batteries are placed on each side of York river and the force is estimated at 30,000 in the vicinity of Yorktown.

course the action of the administration on the Mason and Slidell matter, and the probable time and method of the delivery to the agents of the British government of the leave for Liverpool direct to morrow, with Mesars. Mason and Slidell, is a mistake. The agents of the Conard line assert positively that they have received no such orders, and that their only knowledge of such an arrange-ment is derived from the newspapers. On the contrary, they assure me that they have received orders for the Niagara to sail on her regular day, next Wednesday week, January 8. She is at her dock in East Beston, and is going through her usual process of cleaning after a voy-age; her funiture is displaced, carpets are up, and cer-tainly there is nothing in her present confused appearance to indicate an immediate departure.

There has been no communication with Fort Warren since last Friday until this morning, when the boat made a trip to the fort, and may have carried despatches from the State Department to Colonel Dimmick, relative to the release of the rebel commissioners; but if there were such despatches, United States Marshal Keyes knew nothing of them, nor has he received a word from Washington in regard to the readition of the prisoners. Their transfer to the English authorities will probably be arranged between Mr. Seward and Lord Lyons, as quietly and unestentatiously as possible, thereby preventing any further irritation of our people. This is the opinion of a gentleman of this city people. This is the opinion of a gentleman of this city who is in the most intimate communication with the Secretary of State.

The feeling here in regard to the settlement of this have a war with England?" and the answer, whether in the affirmative or negative, was received with a most dubious shake of the head, and an expression of the fear dubious shake of the head, and an expression of the head, and the that, "universal Yankees," as we unquestionably are, we should hardly be able to suppress the robellion at home and reduce England to the condition of one of her own provinces in the East, at the same time. The news, therefore, that we shall have no war with England, for the present at least, removed a load of apprehension from the minds of the people. I can't say that the settlement of the question is accopted with any demon-strations of enthusiastic joy, and I haven't heard of any but I fancy that Jefferson's (I think) remark, that "few die and none refign," will apply to the officers of the navy as well as to others who draw their pay from the government.

One occasionally meets a man who talks bitterly of the decay of national pluck and honer, and thinks the only proper answer to the demand of England would be the dead bodies of Messrs. Macon and Sidedl; and undoubtedly there is an element in the population of Boston that would render a visit of those gentlemen to the City of Notions an affair not entirely free from danger to their respected persons, and might induce an unusual outlay in their adlicted families for wearing apparel in black crape and other sombre materials. Of course any such attempt would be suppressed by the officers of the law; but if the distinguished prisoners should be landed in Boston there would undoubtedly be a situribance.

However great a diversity of option there may be respecting the disposal of the Trent affair, there is but one draire as to preparing to resist any attempt on the part of Great Britain to follow this demand with other pretexts to force us into a war. The people here insist that the administration shall place the country man attitude that will enable us to respend to any demand for humiliation with the most emphalic refusal. There is a most intense feeling of animocity towards the British government, and the citizens here talk as carnessty of encouraging dome-file manufactures as they did in the painiest days of the Know Nothing party.

The United States transport Constitution, Captain Fletcher, has been freighted since last Friday. Every piece of her cargo has been stowed under the supervision of her efficient commander, and there have been some slight improvements made in the slooping arrangements for the great number of men to be taken on her next trip. She has no board a large amount of munitions of war, and will take one, and perhaps two, batteries of guns, with their calscons. The ship is in splendid condition, and will no doubt carry

Barrow, Doc. 31, 1861 The Harrender of Mason and Stidell—Its Effects in

When the intelligence that Mason and Slidell to be surrondered was first flashed over the wires to this city, the solid and many of the weak men of Boston were loud in the expression of their indignation. The Merchants' Exchange echoed with the declarations that "they never should be given up," even if war with Great Britain were to ensue. The excitement, however gradually subsided, and on the receipt of Secretary mont was acquiesced in, cordially by some and doggedly by others. Since then the telegraph has kept the city in some degree of ferment by reports as to when and how the rebel Commissioners were to be surrendered. It was yesterday stated, on apparently good authority, that the Cunard steamer Nisgara, now in this port, would get up steam at once, go down to Fort Warren, and Cunard steamer Niagara, now in this port, would get up stoam at once, go down to Fort Warren, and take the Commissioners and their secretaries, and their baggage, to England, minus other freight and other passengers. Then, again, it was reported that the British steamer Persia would come in hot hasle from the St. Lawrence, and reflieve Fort Warren of its formidable quartette of rebels. But neither of these reports proved correct. It is true Captain Moodle, of the Niagara, with his usual alacrity couled his ship, and this morning at seven o'clock had steam up ready to go somewhere; but the fact was that the Niagara was simply to leave her berth to make room for the Persia, which might, according to the agent's advices, arrive here in the ordinary course of business, but without any view of taking to Europe the robel Commissioners. Mr. E. C. Bates, Conard's agent, had stready made arrangements fer couling the Persia here; but a despatch received this morning informed him that the Persia would not come to this port, but proceed to New York. Furthermore, it was stated on authority that the Commissioners would go to the one of the process.

It is summised that the America, which leaves your port to morrow for Liverpool, may touch here and take off Mesers. Masca and Sildell, who are very anxious to go by the dired opportunity; but that matter resis with Lord Lyons. They are as it were, now in his hands, although not activated what disposition he will make of them. It is cortain, however, that mo parade will be made about the matter when they do go, or by what vessel. A dip of the flag, and a gun or so may salue the British ensign and that will be all.

There never was a more quite city than that of Roston, rending this event of rendition, which has been chronicated as of such vital importance all over the civilized world. Mayor Wrightman has no fears of trouble, and his little guard of harbor police boats do all the police duty outside the walls of Fort Warren.

The Substitutes for Meears. Biason and Stide! I.

[From the Toronto Leader, Dec. 27.]

Some days since it was stated that Mr. Breckinridge, late of the United States Senate, but now of the Southern confederacy, had sailed in one of the Conard steamers as Ambassador to England in place of Mr. Mason. Then it was said the attainant was incorrect. It proves, however, to have been true, as will be seen from the following paragraph, which we take from the Halifar (N. S.) Repress, of the 13th inst...—

Some few weeks ago it was associated in a despatch to this paper, that immediately on the receipt of the intolligence of the capture of Messrs. Shisell and Mason in the Southern States, Messrs. Hunter and Breckinridge had been appointed in their place; and that the latter would make his way on to Halifax and proceed in the Cunard attempt to Furope. The deepatch turns out to be correct. Mr. Breckinridge, it appears, artived here about a week ago, accompansed by another gentlemen, and took passage this morning in the Canada for Ragiand. It appears that the authorities in Beston were aware of the fact of Mr. Breckinridge being here, and the Attorney General of Hoston sent a notice to the captain of the Canada, previous to his sating from Buston, forbiding him taking Reckinridge on board. We learn that Captain Mutr very questly replied that he was not supposed to know who his passengers were; and he would like to see any passenger taken out of his ship, while under the protection of the British flag. It is also stated that a similar notice was served on the captain of the Canada here, but, we are informed that no notice was taken of it, and Mr. Heckinridge is now on board the steamship on route for Europe.

THE FORT GANSEVOORT INJUNCTION.

Court of Common Pleas.

Before Hou. Judge Hitton.

Pro. 31.—Liance Dayton vi. the Mayor and Commonalty of the city of New York.—This being the day fixed for the return to the writ for an injunction served on the Common Council, the Court was densely crowded. Ex-Judge Dean represented the Corporation Counsel, and ex-Judge Slosson, Mr. Noyes and others for the plaintiff.

Judge Slosson said that he thought he could relieve the Court from the discussion of this case to-day, if the Court coincided with his views on a point which he would now present. They had been served with a demurrer to the complaint, thus admitting all the facts alloged and resting the case solely upon the question of law which it presented. He submitted, as there could be no necessity for any haste in this matter, as the Corporation is a continuing body, and as the questions were of some gravity, and would involve some considerable discussion of law, he thought it should come more properly before the Court at special term on the argument upon the demurrer. He respectfully submitted that that would be the proper disposition of the case; they would take short notice and argue it next Monday. He repeated that there was no necessity for pressing the argument to day; it could not by any possibility be finished unless the Caurt sat to a late hour, and as to-morrow would be New Year's Lay, and as the day after would not be a very proper or comfortable day (at all events for me) to go into a long argument, he submitted that the case go over to next term.

Ex_Ludge Deen and — annext in this case on behalf of present. They had been served with a demurrer to the confortable day (at all events for me) to go into a long argument, he submitted that the case go over to next torm.

Ex.Judge Dean said:—I appear in this case on behalf of the Corporation only and purely because the Corporation Counsel is toe ill to leave his house, and his assistant (Mr. Anderson) is out of town. My instructions from the Corporation Counsel are to lusist upon the argument of this case to-day. He thinks that it is a case that does require that the Court should act upon it; and if the Court thinks, after hearing the statements in the complaint, that the injunction should be continued, of course it would be, Certainly it does not come with good grace from the plaintiff, who has enjoined the legislative branch of this Corporation, to now ask for delay. He (Judge Iean) had read the complaint very attentively, and he could not see anything upon which an injunction should be continued. It might be that the Board of Aldermen would not listen to the elequence of Alderman Dayton; that was all the complaint alleged. He also perceived that the injunction had evidently been granted in great haste, as would appear from the complaint and interlineations, partie stricken out and blanks and half sheets of paper, and he thought that it was due to the Corporation that the matter should be heard to-day. If there were so many counsel ongaged, and they could not finish to-day, they could easily adjourn it to Thursday. Mr. Wood had desired him to estate, by letter which he had received store he entered the half, that he (the Mayor) did not appear or did not oppose the injunction.

state, by letter which he had received since he entered the half, that he (the Mayer) did not appear nor did not oppose the injunction.

Judge Slosson did not think there should be any special favor shown to the Corporation itself or to "the Ring" on this motion. Mayor Wood had declined to oppose the upmetton, and by that he conceded that there was ground for the equitable interference of the Court. Mr. Slosson then alluded to the allegations in the complaint as to bribery and corruption, and he thought that the taxpayers and citizens should call upon the Court not to precipitate action on this subject; there were very grave questions involved, particularly in the present attitude of our financial condition in this city, while we are groaning under taxes to an amount which almost male the possession of real estate a nuisance and a burthen. His learned friend (Judge Doan) had not given a single reason why this matter should be argued to day. "He (Mr. Slosson) contended that where the complaint alleged the attempt to bribe Alderman Davion, and that under influences had been otherwise used in order to hasten the passage of this measure, the Court should defer the motion until all the points of law could be argued before the special term. As to the complaint baying been drawn hastily. He would assure his learned friend, from the personal conviction of counsel, that it had been drawn substantially and on such a basis as would enable it to retain a footing in this Court upon principles entirely sound and well adjudicated.

Judge Doan remarked that in the observation he, of course, did not mean anything disrespectful to the Court. He then proceeded to argue that there were no legal grounds for continuing the injunction.

Mr. W. Noyes was then heard in reply, and in the course of his argument said that, as Mayor Wood had not appeared, of course the injunction should be continued as against him; he altuded to the haste exhibited in the Board of Aldermen, and to the charges of bribery and continued as a should go over un

The first of the revivals, "She Stoops Conquer," was produced at this house on Monday night, before a crowded ditory, with Lester Wallack as Young Marlow and Mr. Blake as Mr. Hardcastle. If we except a slight tendency buffeonery on the part of the former, both characters stained, and the main point of the play-the mistake of Karlow's supposing Mr. Hardcastle's house to be an inn, and acting accordingly—was kept welt in view. Mr. G. Holland, we cannot but consider, selected a difficult role in Tony Lumpkin, the hobbiedehoy; but he carried ort the idea of the character with telerable success. Mrs. Hardcastle was quite the old lady at home; but we can rdly congratulate her daughter upon a very skilful inwas not without considerable merit. ani-disant Ministers Plenipotentiary.

The statement that the Niagara has received orders to difficulty is one of relief. The people breathe more freely than they have done before in ten days. During that time every one asked of his neighbor, "Shall we strations of enthusiastic joy, and I haven't heard of any proposal for a general illumination of the city, or of any proposal for a general illumination of the city, or of any other particularly jubilant expression of satisfaction; in truth I am inclined to think that it was taken a good deal as a man swallows an emetic—not because he loves it, but because it is the best way of ridding himself of an unpleasant matter.

It is thought by many that the delivery of the rebel commissioners will create great dissatisfaction in the navy, and some people predict numerous resignations; but I fancy that Jefferson's (I think) remark, that "few die and none refign," will apply to the officers of the navy as well as to others who draw their pay from the government.
